2 POLICY OVERVIEW

- 2.1 Point Blank is committed to compliance with data protection legislation. From 25 May 2018, this shall include the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) (Regulation (EU) 2016/679) and the Data Protection Act 2018, supplementing and enacting the GDPR within the UK. Such legislation is based on specific principles, rights and responsibilities which govern the management and processing of personal data by organisations. Point Blank recognises those principles, rights, and responsibilities. This document sets out what Point Blank, its staff and students must do in practice to meet and comply with those principles, rights and responsibilities.

3 DEFINITIONS

- 3.1 For the purposes of this document, the following definitions will apply:

3.1.1 'Personal data':

The GDPR defines personal data as any information relating to a data subject (Article 4(1) GDPR). This information will relate to a living, identifiable individual and can be held in a form in which it can be, or is being, processed automatically, either on computer systems or structured manual filing systems. Statements of fact or expression of opinion about an individual data subject are also personal data, as is an indication of a data controller's intentions towards a data subject. The definition also includes data held visually in photographs or video clips (including closed circuit television) or audibly, on sound recordings. The GDPR identifies special categories of personal data ("Sensitive personal data") for which processing is prohibited – these are data which reveal: racial or ethnic origin; political opinions; religious and philosophical beliefs; trade union membership; genetic data; biometric data (for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person, eg fingerprints); data concerning health; and sex life and sexual orientation (Article 9(1) GDPR). Processing of this data is only permitted in the limited circumstances set out in Article 9 GDPR (section 7.1.2 refers). Sensitive personal data does not include personal data relating to criminal offences and convictions, as there are separate and specific safeguards for this type of data contained in Article 10 of the GDPR.

3.1.2 'Data subject':

A data subject is the identified or identifiable person to whom personal data relates. A person is identifiable if he or she can be identified, by all reasonably available means, directly or indirectly, by reference to an identifier, such as a name, identification number, location data, an online identifier or by reference to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that person (Article 4(1) GDPR). This may also include where the data subject is identifiable because of the context of the information. The rights of data subjects are set out, in detail, in Appendix II.

3.1.3 'Data processing':

In effect, this means any activity involving personal data. It is very broadly defined by the GDPR (Article 1(1) GDPR) as carrying out any operation or set of operations on data, including collection; recording; organisation; structuring; storage; adaptation or alteration; retrieval; consultation; use; disclosure by transmission; dissemination or otherwise making available; alignment or combination; restriction (i.e. marking stored data to prevent future processing); erasure; or destruction.

3.1.4 'Data controller':

The person(s) who determine(s) the purposes for, and the manner for, the processing of any personal data which, for the purposes of this document, is Point Blank. Most obligations under the GDPR fall on the data controller, who may act alone or jointly with others.

3.1.5 'Data processor':

A natural (individual) or legal (corporate) person, public authority, agency, or other body which processes personal data on behalf of a data controller (Article 4(8) GDPR). The GDPR imposes specific and separate duties and obligations on data processors. Point Blank is a data controller and may also be a data processor.

3.1.6 'Data user':

An authorised user of personal data held by Point Blank, as data controller or data processor (for example, a member of staff of Point Blank or a student of Point Blank).

3.1.7 'Consent'

Any freely given, specific, informed, and unambiguous indication of the data subject's wishes by which he or she, by a statement or by a clear affirmative action, signifies agreement to the processing of personal data relating to him or her.

4 RESPONSIBILITIES

4.1 Data Protection Officer

Point Blank has appointed a DPO for Point Blank to oversee data protection law. It is the job of the DPO to advise Point Blank with data protection legislation.

All members of staff of Point, students involved in research work or placements, and other members of Point Blank who record and/or process personal data in any form are responsible for complying with the requirements of data protection legislation. They must comply at all times with the data protection principles set out below (section 5.2, refers) and with the regulations and procedures set out in this document, its appendices, and in any supplementary procedures which may be introduced from time-to-time.

- 4.1.1 Whenever a new or novel form of processing personal data (such as a new software application) is contemplated, or a project (such as a study) involves the processing of personal data, those concerned must seek advice to ensure that the proposed processing is lawful. For any new form of processing personal data or project involving the processing of personal data, a Data Protection Impact Assessment ("DPIA") must be completed within a reasonable time of the project being proposed and, in any case, no later than one month before the project goes live (Appendix I, refers). The DPO can advise and assist staff with the completion of DPIAs. All completed DPIAs must be provided to the DPO, so that a central record may be maintained.

- 4.1.2 Students must only obtain and/or use personal data relating to third parties for approved research or other legitimate Point Blank related purposes once they have obtained the express consent of an appropriate member of staff who is responsible for their supervision. In such circumstances the student may also be considered a joint data controller with Point Blank as defined in 3.1.4 above.
- 4.1.3 All data users must be aware that a breach of these regulations is a very serious matter. A breach of data protection legislation, defined as 'a breach of security leading to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to, personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed' must be reported to the ICO within 72 hours of an organisation becoming aware of the breach. Therefore, a member of staff of Point Blank is required to report any such breach to the DPO immediately, following the Data Breach Procedure set out in Appendix V. Point Blank may be subject to legal proceedings and/or fines as a result of any breach. It is therefore imperative that staff inform the DPO of any breach as soon as they become aware of it. The DPO (in consultation with senior officers of Point Blank) will liaise with members of staff and, inform them of such steps as need to be taken in relation to any breach.

5 DATA PROTECTION PRINCIPLES

- 5.1 Point Blank is committed to the principles set out in the GDPR which apply to the processing of personal data (Article 5 GDPR). All staff must follow appropriate procedures, processes and mechanisms to ensure that the management and processing of personal data adheres to these principles.
- 5.2 The data protection principles are as follows:
- i Lawfulness, fairness and transparency – personal data must be processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner as regards the data subjects (Article 5(1)(a) GDPR);
 - ii Purpose limitation – personal data must be collected only for specific, explicit and legitimate purposes. It cannot be processed for any other purposes (Article 5(1)(b) GDPR);
 - iii Data minimisation – personal data must be adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary for the purposes for which it is being processed (Article 5(1)(c) GDPR);
 - iv Accuracy – personal data must be accurate and (where necessary) kept up-to-date. Any inaccurate data must be deleted or corrected without delay and where appropriate (for example: the usefulness of research data may be lost if it is amended to reflect a data subject's current circumstances) (Article 5(1)(d) GDPR);
 - v Limitation on storage – personal data must not be kept in a form which could permit the identification of the data subjects for any longer than is necessary for the purposes for which it is being processed (Article 5(1)(e) GDPR);
 - vi Integrity and confidentiality – personal data must be processed in a secure manner, which protects it from unlawful processing and/or accidental loss (Article 5(1)(f) GDPR); and
 - vii Accountability – the data controller is ultimately responsible for compliance with these principles and must be able to demonstrate that compliance (Article 5(2) GDPR).

- 5.3 To ensure staff compliance with data protection legislation, Point Blank will develop and implement sub-policies and rules which will be published on Point Blank's website as they become available. This will include specific information regarding current data protection legislation and the rights and responsibilities of staff and students under it.

6 DATA SECURITY

- 6.1 Members of staff are responsible for ensuring that all personal data is held securely and that they do not permit unauthorised access to, or disclosure of, data. Staff must therefore ensure the safe-keeping of all structured manual files, hard discs, back-up media, removable storage media, DVDs, laptops, mobile phones, tablets and other device or items of equipment on or in which data are held. Staff should also ensure that any screen or device showing personal data cannot be viewed by unauthorised individuals. Specific information management and security policies support this responsibility¹.

7 LEGAL BASES FOR PROCESSING (PRIVACY STATEMENT)

7.1 General

- 7.1.1 Personal Data may only be processed in the following circumstances, pursuant to Article 6(1) of the GDPR:

- i With the Data Subject's explicit and informed consent – An individual has given clear and informed consent to the processing of their Personal Data for a specific, identified purpose. Such consent requires a positive opt-in, by a clear and affirmative act, and the individuals involved must have a genuine choice and be able to opt-out at any time. Consent may only be relied upon where there is no other lawful basis for processing personal data. For the purposes of the EU Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulation, consent is required for all electronic marketing. [Article 6(1)(a) GDPR]
- ii Where it is necessary for the performance of a contract – Processing of the personal data is permitted either (a) in order to allow the performance of a contract to which the data subject is a party; or (b) in order to take steps, at the request of the data subject, prior to entering into a contract. [Article 6(1)(b) GDPR]
- iii Where there is a legal obligation to process Personal Data – Processing of the personal data is necessary in order that the data controller (this is likely to be Point Blank or one of) may comply with a legal obligation, either arising from legislation or the requirements of a regulator or a court of law [Article 6(1)(c) GDPR]. This may include, by way of example, a situation where a professional or regulatory body (such as the Office for Students or the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA)) requires such processing pursuant to their rules.
- iv Where the processing is in the vital interests of the data subject – Processing of the personal data is necessary in order to protect the vital interests of the data subject (eg in a medical emergency where Point Blank is asked to hand over a data subject's personal data by a doctor or hospital). [Article 6(1)(d) GDPR]
- v Where processing is necessary for the performance of a public function – Processing of the personal data is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the data controller. Such public interest or official authority must arise as a matter of EU or Member State law.
- vi Where processing is necessary to meet the legitimate interests of the data controller – Processing of personal data may be in Point Blank's, or a third party's legitimate interests in circumstances where: (a) Point Blank has balanced its interests or the interests of a third party with the interests and rights of the data subject; (b) it has properly documented that balancing exercise; (c) it has informed the data subject that it is processing the personal data on that basis (by providing the data subject with a copy of this policy); and (d) the data subject has the right to object to that processing. Broadly speaking, this basis for processing is appropriate in circumstances where Point Blank wishes to prevent fraud or ensure the security of a network. The interests of the data subject must not override those of Point Blank, and the data subject must have a reasonable expectation that processing would take place for the specific purpose. As a public authority, Point Blank may not rely on this basis for processing when performing public tasks – it will only apply to non-public, private activities (eg. alumni and fundraising activities). [Article 6(1)(f) GDPR]

- 7.1.2 Sensitive personal data (or “special category” personal data) is subject to much stronger controls and may only be processed where one or more of the following circumstances applies, pursuant to Article 9(2) of the GDPR:
- i Explicit consent – The data subject has given their explicit consent to the processing of the sensitive personal data, except where this is prohibited by English or EU law. [Article 9(2)(a) GDPR]
 - ii Where processing is necessary as a result of legal requirements relating to employment – Processing of the sensitive personal data is necessary for the purposes of carrying out the obligations or exercising the rights of the data controller or data subject under employment, social security or social protection law or where there is a collective agreement under EU Member State law which provides for appropriate safeguards to protect the rights of the Data Subject. [Article 9(2)(b) GDPR]
 - iii Where the processing is in the vital interests of the data subject – Processing of the sensitive personal data is necessary in order to protect the vital interests of the data subject or another natural person and they are physically or legally incapable of giving consent (eg in a medical emergency where Point Blank is asked to hand over a data subject’s personal data by a doctor or hospital, and they are unable to give consent for themselves). [Article 9(2)(c) GDPR]
 - iv Where the processing is carried out by a not-for-profit body – Processing of the sensitive personal data is permitted where it is carried out in the course of the legitimate interests and the processing relates solely to members or former members of that body or to people who have regular contact with it in connection with its purposes, and the sensitive personal data is not disclosed outside that body without the consent of the data subjects. [Article 9(2)(d) GDPR]
 - v Public information – The data subject has taken deliberate steps to make the relevant sensitive personal data public. [Article 9(2)(e) GDPR]
 - vi Legal claims – The processing of the sensitive personal data is necessary to establish, exercise or defend legal claims or whenever courts are acting in their judicial capacity. [Article 9(2)(f) GDPR]
 - vii Substantial public interest – Processing of the sensitive personal data is necessary for reasons of substantial public interest under EU or Member State law (where such processing is proportionate, respects the essence of the right to data protection and provides suitable safeguards for the data subject’s rights). [Article 9(2)(g) GDPR]

- viii Healthcare – The processing is necessary for the purposes of preventive or occupational medicine, for the assessment of the working capacity of an employee, for medical diagnosis, for the provision of health or social care or the treatment or management of health or social care systems and services, subject to the requirements of EU or Member State law and appropriate safeguards. [Article 9(2)(h) GDPR]
- ix Public health – The processing is necessary for reasons of public health, such as protection against serious cross-border threats to health or ensuring high standards of quality and safety of healthcare and medicinal products or devices, on the basis of EU or Member State law. [Article 9(2)(i) GDPR]
- x Archiving – The processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, on the basis of EU or Member State law, and appropriate safeguards for the rights of data subjects. [Article 9(2)(j)]

In accordance with the above, Point Blank may seek explicit consent for the processing of sensitive personal data (or criminal offence data), unless an alternative legal basis applies. We may, for instance, process sensitive personal data where processing is necessary for the purposes of performing or exercising obligations or rights which are imposed or conferred by law on Point Blank or on the data subject (in connection with employment, social security or social protection, as set out above); or where it is necessary in the substantial public interest for the exercise of a function conferred on Point Blank by an enactment or rule of law (i.e. in the case of DBS checks or where required by a regulator or professional regulatory body) or for equal opportunities monitoring; or where the processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, for scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, subject to such further safeguards for Data Subjects' rights and interests as are required by law.

- 7.1.3 This policy sets out the legal bases on which Point Blank processes personal data. It should be brought to the attention of any individuals whose personal data may be processed by Point Blank or its group companies as a result of their involvement or connection with Point Blank and those companies. The processing of such personal data may arise in any number of circumstances including, by way of examples only, where a person is accessing information about staff or student services; where they have signed up to attend an event at Point Blank or to receive information about events and services; or where that person is a prospective student or member of staff.
- 7.1.4 For convenience, this policy has broken down the specific bases for processing personal data into the most likely categories of data subject, as set out below:

- 7.1.7 Information on how individuals can access the personal data relating to them held by Point Blank is available below at Appendix II - Data Subjects' Rights and Appendix III - Subject Access Request Form.
